- Fails to follow the instructions on taking the Online Oral Test;

9.5.5 End Result Calculation

- Regarding the IB exam applicants, the PHASE 1 average will be calculated as follows: $\text{PHASE 1 AVERAGE} = [\text{IB SCORE}] * 10 / 45$.
- Regarding the ABITUR exam applicants, the PHASE 1 average will be calculated as follows: $\text{PHASE 1 AVERAGE} = (6 - [\text{ABITUR SCORE}]) * 10 / 5$.
- Regarding the BAC exam applicants, the PHASE 1 average will be calculated as follows: $\text{PHASE 1 AVERAGE} = [\text{BAC SCORE}] * 10 / 20$.
- Regarding the SAT exam applicants, the PHASE 1 average will be calculated as follows: $\text{PHASE 1 AVERAGE} = [\text{SAT SCORE}] * 10 / 1600$.
- The calculation of the FINAL AVERAGE will be made by assigning weight seven (7) to the Grade for Phase 1, and weight three (3) to the Grade for Phase 2 (Oral Exam), and dividing the sum of these two components by ten (10), according to the following formula:

$$\text{- FINAL AVERAGE} = (7 \times [\text{PHASE 1 AVERAGE}] + 3 \times [\text{PHASE 2 AVERAGE}]) / 10$$

- For the Business Administration undergraduate course, applicants are listed in descending order, considering the FINAL AVERAGE obtained, and selected:
 - a. The twelve (12) applicants with the best performance among those who took the IB exam, who will PASS, ten (10) of them for the Day period and two (2) of them for the Night period.
 - b. The three (3) applicants with the best performance among those who took the ABITUR exam, who will PASS, two (2) of them for the Day period and one (1) of them for the Night period.

At some point, the nth applicant may be called to enroll in their second option, because all the places in their first option have already been filled. In that case, the qualified applicant may:
 - i. Exercise, if specified, their second option, and wait for the possibility of being reassigned to their first option;
